THE GREAT WORK OF EVANGELISTS

An Interesting Statement That is Made by Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman,

Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., secretary of the Evangelistic Committee of the General Assembly of the Prosbyterian Church, is now conducting a series of Forvices in Toledo, Ohio. In the course of his address to a large assemblage of men Sunday afternoon, he declared that the spirit of evangelism was not dead among the men of the great cities of North America, and cited the remarkable work that has been developed in the last work that has been developed in the last ew years by the Young Men's Christian rork that has been acceptance of the connections of men. He said:

"I have been connected with the Young Men's Christian Association from my outh up and intimately associated with them in their work for young men. They have always been intensely carnest in their evangelistic effort, and have constantly studied the needs as well as the temptations of men. With enterprise and persistence they have adapted their services to reach the largest number of men of the clies, railroads and colleges of the country. Since the appointment of specialists to conduct these meetings The largest theatres in the cities. I am indeed surprised myself that even in the city of Washington, a place which has been supposed to be the least responsive to evangelistic effort, to find that for two years a great service has been held with an attendance often exceeding 2,500 men, and averaging for the winter over 1,500. The most notable men in Washington are found in constant attendance, participating in the actual service with the enthusiasm which characterized the old Moody meetings. Since January 1st 200 men have in these meetings declared their purpose of leading Christian lives. me old city of Baltimore a series of meetings has been averaging over ien each week. Here over 600 men money for these audiences, engaging the best musical talent, and often circulating rmoney for these audiences, engaging the best musical talent, and often circulating 40,000 invitations for a single service, bewide posters, newspaper advertising, etc., to attract the attention and attendance of men.

In some places at least 200 men are engaged on different committees working up these meetings. The addresses for the most part are straightforward, virile, manly appeals to the brains and consociences of men, and without wavering or applogy men are urged to take an jammediate stand for what is clean, manly and Christian. Probably the man who is smost successful in this work for men in this country is Fred B. Smith. For at least forty-five Sundays in the year he is anderessing audiences of 500 to 2,000 men, and last year over 1,500 men expressed their purpose to lead a Christian life at meetings conducted by him. No small proportion of these men are leaders in the social, intellectual and business him of their communities. This is one of the most encouraging demonstrations of the fact that the old gospel has not lost its 1power, and where men unite with courses and power in undertakings of large purpose, large results follow. What the Young Men's Christian Association has idemonstrated is possible in every city and town in this country."

THE STUART MONUMENT.

The bill dedicating a site in the Capitol grounds for an equestrain statue of General J. E. B. Stuart and carrying with it an appropriation of $10,000 came up, Mr. Sears made a most eloquent, a touching, a fervent and carnest appeal to his follow Senators to pass this act. There was no sound in the Senate chamber while he was speaking except his own voice. He apoke as a son of a Confederate soldier, and told of how he had the winter firesdes in old Mathews county heard told the tales of the daring deeds of this great soldier, and how had longed to contribute something to perpetuate the memory of "Jeb" Stuart.

Many a tear trickled down the check of a grizzled veteran while the Mathews Sonator poured out his praise to the man who had made such a sacrifice for the cause he believed and knew to be right.

The tribute to Lee was eloquent; to Stonewall Jackson it was grand, and capping the climax, Mr. Sears begged every Senator to pass this bill to honor the greatest cavalry leader the world has ever produced, and one who has been given no monument. His picture of Stuart, of the merry twinkle in his eye, of his love of music, of his fondness of social company of his during, his courage, his chivalry, was so splendidly drawn some of those who had followed Stuart were almost swept from their feet.

Mr. Bland, of Portsmouth, conducted the fight for his bill in a most skillful ranner, and he was ably supported by Messrs. Caton, Whitchead and others, Messrs. Sipe, West and Edmondson were among those who opposed the bill.

Several bills of more or less importance were offered and referred.

Mr. Gold, a Confederate veteran, urged the passage of the bill. "I cannot be elequent, but can only feel elequent under such circumstances," said Senator Gold. The speaker related some of the incidents of Stuart's life which came to his personal notice during the war. While the gentleman from Clarke was not so flowery in his language as Messrs. Sears and Halsey, the was truly elequent in the earnestness with which he urged the passage of this bill.

MR. WICKHAM'S ELOQUENCE.

One was by Mr. Powers, to punish persons for breaking into United States and boxes in rural districts, and another was by Mr. Allen, to authorize the erection of a Confederate menument in the county of Botetourt.

Hon. Henry W. Holt, of Staunton, was elected judge of the Corporation Court of Buena Vista by both houses, to succeed the incumbent, who declined re-election.

The House again voted to begin its sessions at 10 o'clock A. M., instead of at anom.

The Senate.

The Senate.

The proceedings of the Senate were opened with prayer by the Rev G. O. Meade, of the Episcopal Church.

Among the visitors upon the floor was the Rev. Samuel R, Gammon, of the Prospoterion Church, and the Code in relation to the collection of taxes or levies and destraining therefor.

At 12:20 o'clock the Senate went into the execution of the joint order having for its object the election of a judge of the Corporation Court of Buena Vistan. The only mane presented was that of Henry W. Holt, who received all the votes cast and was declared elected.

Mr. McHewine offered a bill to amend the Code in relation to suits tord divores. The change proposed to be made jin section 290 of the Code is in the following words:

"And Day Process or notice in succe proceedings shall be served except by efficers authorized to serve the same; and all depositions, where taken in this State, shall be before a cominissioner in chancery.' In other words the bill contemplates doing away with personal potter to nobles hese recy and to have the evidence taken by official appointed by the court.

The House was called to order at noon by Speaker Ryan and prayer was offered by Rev. P. B. Price, of the Presbyterian Church.

The House, on motion of Mr. Cardwell, decided to hereafter meet at ten o'clock instead of at noon. Mr. Lee presented a resolution from the Methodist Episcopal Sunday-school of Falls (Church, praying for the masage of the ist Episcopal Sunday-school of Falls Church, praying for the passage of th Mann bill, and Mr. Gent, offered a reso-lution cutting off the pay of absent mem-bers after five days. The following bills were offered and referred:

By Mr. Leake: To provide for keeping in repair the roads in Fluvania.

By Mr. Powers: To provide punishment for persons breaking into mail boxes in rural districts.

By Mr. Allen: To authorize the erection of a Confederate monument at the county seat of Botebout.

On motion of Mr. Churchman, the two Houses proceeded at 12:30 o'clock to cleet a judge of the Corporation Court of the city of Buena Vista, and Hon.
Henry W. Holt, of the city of Staunton, was chosen unanimously.
A number of bills on the calendar were given their constitutional reading before the special order of the day. The Bland firemen's relief bill was taken up.

The speech of Mr. Caton measured well up to former ones made by him, and he grew eloquent as he appealed to the House to stand to the men who had worn out their lives in defense of the homes and lives and property of the people. The speaker pald a pretty tribute to the bravery of the volunteer firemen and he appealed eloquently to the House to vote for the bill.

Mr. Whitchead spoke for the bill. Mr. Whitchead spoke for the bill of his Tidewater collengue, and his effort was a very strong and eloquent one. The Norfolk member went into statisties, by which he undertook to prove that the $2,500 asked could be well spent by the State.

Major Edmundson spoke against the measure briefly, and he was followed on the same line by Mr. Slipe, of Rockingham, who said some of his constituency had earnestly asked him to support the measure. He opposed it, however, upon principle, and hoped it would be defeated. Mr. Sipe compared the firemen to physicians and trained nurses, and said that, while the work of one was a noble one, yet none had a right to come forward and ask the State to put them on a pension list. MR. BLAND SPEAKS.

MR. BLAND ISPEARS.

Hon. Charles T. Bland, of Portsmouth, took the floor at a quarter to 2 o'clock to speak for his measure. Beside the member from Portsmouth sat Mrs. Bland, and her presence seemed to stimulate him to outdo himself in his effort to persuade the House to support his bill.

Mr. Bland spoke of the liberal hand with which the Legislature gave appropriations to this or that organization and institution, and then he paid a great tribute to the gallantry of the firemen, who said they deserved as much protection as the military or as any other arm of the government.

Mr. Bland spoke with much vigor and carnestness. He spoke of the benefits resulting to the State and municipalities from the bravery of the firemen, and said all recalled the awful night of agony when the Virginia penitentiary, involving an enormous amount of life

At 2:30 o'clock the House adjourned until 10 o'clock to-day.
